GENERAL NOTE: EXTRACT FROM THE VVG

§ 6 FAILURE TO ADHERE TO AN OBLIGATION

1. If the contract stipulates that, in case of a breach of an obligation which is owed by the person insured to the insurance company before the occurrence of a claim, the insurance company shall be released from the obligation to pay benefit, the legal consequence agreed to shall not be effective if the breach was to be seen as one for which the party could not be held responsible. The insurance company may give notice of termination of the contract within one month from the time when the breach comes to its knowledge, without observing a term of notice, unless the breach is to be seen as one for which the party could not be held responsible. If the insurance company does not give notice of termination of the contract within one month, it may not avail itself of the release from obligation to pay benefit that has been agreed upon.

2. If there has been a failure to adhere to an obligation which the policy holder owes to the insurance company with a view to the reduction of the risk or to guard against any possible increase in the risk, the insurance company may not avail itself of the release from obligation to pay benefit which has been agreed upon if it be the case that the breach of obligation has not had any effect on the occurrence of a claim or on the scope of the associated benefit due.

3. If the contract stipulates a release from the obligation to pay benefit in a case where the person insured fails to adhere to an obligation which is owed to the insurance company after the occurrence of the claim, the legal consequence agreed upon shall not be effective if the breach in question was not the result of either deliberate intent or gross negligence. In a case of gross negligence the insurance company shall remain obliged to pay benefit to the extent that the breach involved shall have had no effect either on the establishment of the claim or on the establishment of the scope of the benefit which it is incumbent on the insurance company to pay.

4. Any agreement according to which the insurance company shall be entitled in case of a breach of obligation to withdraw from the contract is invalid.

§ 11 DUE DATE OF PAYMENT

1. Cash payments are to be made by the insurance company with the ending of the enquiries that are needed for the establishment of the claim and the scope of the benefit payable by the insurance company.

2. If these enquiries are not completed after the expiry of one month from the time of notification of the claim, the policy holder shall be entitled to request advance payment on the total claim in the form of instalment payments to the amount of the sum which would be the minimum that the insurance company would have to pay in the given circumstances.

3. This term shall not apply so long as the conclusion of the enquiries has been held up in consequence of actions for which the policy holder can be held responsible.

4. Any agreement by which the insurance company is released from the obligation to pay interest on arrears is invalid.

§ 12 EXPIRY BY LIMITATION

1. The claims based on the insurance contract shall be subject to expiry by limitation after two years. The period of limitation shall begin with the close of the year in which payment of the benefit may be requested.

2. If the insurance company has been notified of a claim by the policy holder, expiry by limitation shall be blocked until the receipt of the written decision of the insurance company.

3. The insurance company shall be released from the obligation to pay benefit if the claim to benefit has not been successfully asserted at law within six months. This term does not begin until the time when the insurance company has declined in writing to recognise the claim that has been asserted by the policy holder, stating the legal consequences that will follow from the expiry of the term.

§ 38 DELAYED PAYMENT OF THE FIRST ANNUAL PREMIUM

1. If the first annual premium is not paid on time, the insurance company shall be entitled, so long as payment has not been effected, to withdraw from the contract. It shall count as grounds for withdrawal if the claim to the premium has not been successfully asserted at law within three months from the due date of payment.

2. If the premium has not yet been paid at the time of the occurrence of a claim, the insurance company shall be released from the obligation to pay benefit.

§ 39 DELAYED PAYMENT OF A SUBSEQUENT RENEWAL PREMIUM

1. If a subsequent premium is not paid on time, the insurance company may at the cost of the policy holder appoint to the latter in writing a term of payment of at least two weeks; for signature purposes, a reproduction of the autograph signature shall be taken as sufficient. In this connection the legal consequences are to be stated which will ensue with the expiry of the term, in keeping with sections 2 and 3. Any appointment of a term that fails to take these prescriptions into account is invalid.

2. If a claim should occur after the expiry of the term, and if the policy holder should be in arrears with the payment of the premium or the interest or costs owing on it, the insurance company shall be released from the obligation to pay benefit.

3. After the expiry of the term, if the policy holder is in arrears with the payment, the insurance company may give notice of termination of the insurance contract without observance of any term of notice. Termination may be effected already at the time of the appointment of a term for payment, in such a way that it becomes effective on the expiry of the term, if the policy holder at this point is in arrears with the payment; the policy holder must be expressly informed of this when notice of termination is given. The effects of the notice of termination lapse if the policy holder makes good the payment within one month after notice of termination has been given, or, if notice of termination has been associated with the appointment of a term for payment, within one month after the expiry of the term set for payment, provided that a claim has not arisen by this time.

4. In so far as the legal consequences indicated in sections 2 and 3 relate to the fact that interest or costs have not been paid, they shall only become effective if the notification of the term set for payment states the rate of interest or the amount of the costs.

§ 67 ASSIGNMENT OF INDEMNIFICATION CLAIMS

1. If the policy holder has an indemnification claim against a third party, the claim shall be assigned to the insurance company, provided that the latter indemnifies the policy holder. The transfer may not be claimed to the disadvantage of the policy holder. If the policy holder surrenders his claim on the third party or a right that serves to ensure the claim, the insurance company shall be released from its obligation to indemnify the policy holder to the extent that it could have obtained compensation from the claim or right in question.

2. If the policy holder's claim to indemnification is directed to a family member living with him/her in a domestic context, such an assignment is excluded; the claim shall however be assigned if the family member should have occasioned the damage by acting with deliberate intent.
